The collaboration unlocks the complementary strengths of both organisations, combining technical expertise, local market knowledge and professional resources to provide clients with coordinated support.

Headquartered in Milan, United Consulting is an interdisciplinary engineering consultancy with offices across Italy and experience delivering projects nationally and internationally. The practice provides expertise across digital engineering, sustainability, building services and Health & Safety, supporting clients through an integrated approach to design and project delivery.

Built on a shared commitment to collaboration, technical excellence and sustainable design, the agreement creates opportunities for the two businesses to support clients across a broader range of sectors, markets and project types.

By combining their respective strengths and established presence in their core markets, Tyréns Hilson Moran and United Consulting will be better placed to support clients navigating increasingly complex project environments. The collaboration brings together deep knowledge of regulatory requirements, market conditions and delivery practices, enabling project teams to draw on the right expertise wherever it is needed.

The agreement will also facilitate closer collaboration between teams through the sharing of facilities, infrastructure and professional resources where appropriate. This will help enhance project delivery, improve efficiency and provide clients with seamless access to expertise across multiple markets.

Together, the two organisations combine international experience with strong local insight, supporting clients in delivering successful, sustainable outcomes.
